DEDICATION

"THE STATUE OF LIBERTY"

I have heard about her for many years,
How, when people see her, they often
shed tears;
Because of the greatness for which she stands
Her fame has spread to many lands.

She stands stately and staunch, un-
daunted by fear,
To guard our liberty from year to year;
Her torch lights our land both day and night,
She is our symbol of courage and might.

At first sight of her valiant pose,
Within me a feeling of pride arose.
And in my heart a thankful prayer
That she would be forever guarding us there.

ROSEMARY GRIFFITH.

H. E. STEVENSON

Our 1942 Wigwam goes out into a war torn America — a new America in which every individual has but one objective — to so live and work that he or she may make the greatest possible contribution to our war effort.

Many of the boys pictured herein will soon be wearing the uniform of the finest country that man has ever known. We hope that this book will carry to those boys not only the usual memories, but also the best wishes of every faculty member and student.

We wish for each of you a satisfactory experience and a speedy, safe return — after the job is well done.

SENIOR CLASS

Of their four enjoyable years in high school, this year was probably the most memorable for the senior class. The class of '42 has been very successful in its many activities.

In January the seniors held a dance in honor of the alumni. The hall was decorated with evergreens covered with cotton snow to give the effect of winter.

The seniors edited an edition of the Papoose on March 30. The paper was enjoyed by the entire student body.

The class play, "Don't Take My Penny" by Marten, which was given April 7 proved to be another success for the seniors.

The Frolic on April 10 used "Blues in the Night" as a theme. The music was furnished by Al Stovall's popular orchestra. Because of the national defense program, the seniors refrained from using as much paper for decorations as usual.

The present day situation has greatly hindered bus and automobile transportation; therefore, the senior ditch-day outing was made by train. The class spent a very pleasant day at Coolidge Lake.

All the money left by the senior class is to be put into the Student Trust Fund for the purchasing of defense bonds.

Another school year is about to end, and with it will go another senior class. Baccalaureate and graduation exercises which will be held on the tennis courts will end the seniors' stay in Globe High School.

The senior class wishes to express its appreciation to the class sponsors, Miss Neely and Mr. Clements; and to Mr. Grice who was a class sponsor the first semester. Their help and guidance have made the senior class activities a success.

Yes, that's right; it was the present Juniors who won the Freshman-Sophomore game twice in succession. It was the Juniors who preesnted that appropriate Military Prom! (And one of the best.) They worked hard to give those husky looking Seniors their last dance. Did they like it? You said it!

But, of course, that isn't all the Juniors have done. No, sir, for they presented their Junior Class Play called "Professor, How Could You?" which went over with a "bang". Also their candy sales raised the class funds, too.

Throughout the year, the Juniors have had fun working together and certainly hope to continue their activities in their Senior year.

JUNIOR PLAY

"Professor, How Could You!" the three-act farce presented by the Juniors February 12, was an exceedingly hilarious play. The play not only filled the class coffers from which the Seniors were royally entertained at the Prom, but it was a real joy to those who produced it.

The intrigues that Professor Perry, who must find himself a wife within a week if he is to become Dean of the College, becomes a victim of, keeps the audience in a constant uproar. Vicky Randolph a student of the professor is the instigator of those plots, but in the end it is she who won the professor, though apparently that was fartherest from her mind. Grandpa, an "innocent bystander" was really the cog that kept all wheels turning.

Student Council Representative . Janice Bradley

The Sophomore Class has been working hard during the past two years to prepare for the expense of being upperclassmen. The class of "44" has been a two-year loser at the annual "Freshman-Sophomore Football Game"; therefore their treasury has been twice emptied to be the hosts to the school.

This class is represented in the Honor Society, Papoose, Wigwam, Trail Breakers, Boys' Glee Club, Girls' Glee Club, A Cappella Choir, Girls' League Council, Girl Reserve Council, G.A.A. Council, and Student Council.

The "Sophs" have the honor of being the first underclass to present a three-act play. "The High School Mystery" was a credit to both the class and the sponsors. Miss Potthoff directed the play.

The Freshman Class started the year off with a bang with a little white-wash party on the "G" — after suitable urging by students and school officials. Then the be-spotted Freshmen whipped the Sophomores in the annual gridiron classic.

To reinforce and improve their treasury, they sold lots of candy to the hungry onlookers at the basketball games. It was so much fun to have a little money that they decided to get a little more. They ordered — sight unseen (honor bright) — a movie called the "Green Hand." It was a wonderful and horrible thing, and the student body gave it a reception like no other movie ever got — But — to pass on — they soothed their consciences somewhat by giving a tea dance for the student body. It was almost a free dance, too — just a thin dime for stags and this and that.

The crowning glory of the year was the Freshman Papoose, which was a dilly — in the true Freshman manner, done under the direction of Vernon Mounce and Doris Dodd.

FRESHMAN CLASS

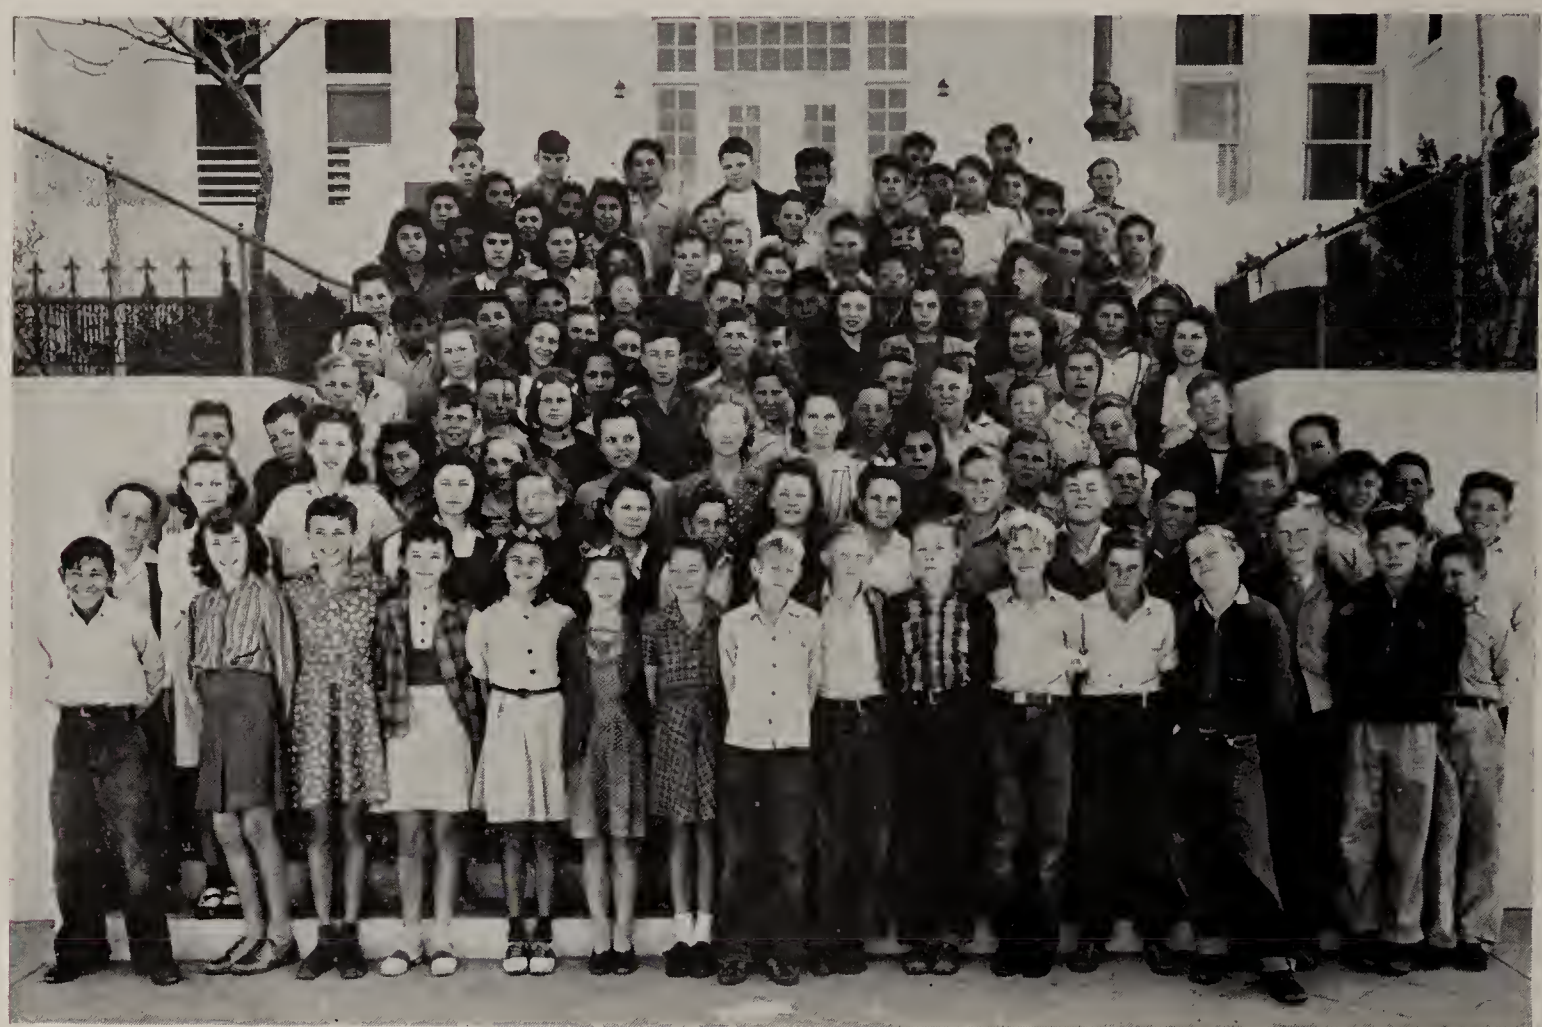
EIGHTH GRADE

The present eighth grade is a group of energetic, activity-boasting and sales promotion minded youngsters. In the past Red Cross drives for funds, the eighth grade donated more per student than any other group in Junior or Senior high schools. In the promotion of ticket sales for the Minstrel Pep Show, they ranked high.

One group has purchased more than $350 worth of Defense War Bonds and stamps at this time.

Globe high school certainly looks forward to an up and coming Frosh class for '43.

SEVENTH GRADE



The 1942 members of the Seventh Grade Class have made quite a name for themselves this year.

They have many achievements, such as writing patriotic poetry, taking first-aid, participating in the Junior High Chorus, and entering with enthusiasm all high school activities open to them.

Their home room teachers are Miss Huntington, Mrs. Stong, Miss Ferguson, and Mr. Ziede.

This group of about one hundred and fifty boys and girls has really made progress since they came to the high school.

MECHANICS CLASS

Old Central School, the Grandaddy of all Globe school buildings, has been given a new lease on life and now hums busily from early in the morning until far into the night with the activities associated with teaching men and women to use tools and in helping them to learn new vocations.

Twenty of our high school seniors have studied diligently to become Aircraft and Engine Mechanics and will, soon after graduation, go to military fields where they will help to win this war by servicing the war planes of our nation.

Four hundred men have been trained to enter aircraft factories during the first year of the school's operation. Both men and women, at the rate of fifty a month, will pass through the doors of the Vocational School each month for the duration of the war, and when the war is over Globe High School will have one of the best equipped vocational shops in the west.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

This year the seniors chose "Don't Take My Penny", a three-act comedy centering around Penny (Jacqueline Wilson) a movie-struck girl of sixteen. Harrison Day (James Harbison) a noted author is touring the country in search for an ideal Dimity West. Penny doesn't know that a plot has been made by Norman Porter, a publicity agent (Joe Ciochetti) where Sally, the new maid, a former child star, (Llewellyn Wills) is to be discovered by the author in Penny's home. Penny ignores Sally and her self-sacrificing older sister Mavis, (Marguerite Oddenetto) who has small parts on the radio, but accepts the loyal services of her good friend Joanna (Susan Trioss). Penny and Joanna give up playing in the tennis tournament with their boyfriends Kerry (Earl Spoon) and Greg (Jimmy Gaudino). The boys are all broken up about it; so they talk to the delightful old character Gram (Bonnie Lee Cox) and decide to outwit Penny and Joanna by posing as the great author and brunnette model. Penny gets Henri, the clothes designer (Carol Hosack) to model clothes by his models Antonette (Alma Giocoma), Lucille (Patsy Haught), and Claire (Eloise Trethewey). Matters become more hilarious when Dad (Lewis Bowman) brings home Harrison Day, the real author. Then things start clearing up. Sally is discovered to be the ex-child star who has fallen in love with Mark, the older brother (Harold Knutson) whose ambition is to run a chicken farm. At the end, Kerry, Penny, Greg, and Joanna are finally paired up. Gram gives the mother, Lydia, (Rosemary Griffith) a piece of her mind as to taking care of her own family rather than running other people's families. The real Harrison Day chooses Mavis to be Dimity West, the ideal star of "Stars in Her Hair".

Musings of an Ink Bottle

Have you ever wondered what an ink bottle thinks about? Well I have; so to satisfy my curiosity I hired a spy one day to find out for me. Maybe you have heard of him or maybe you know him. His name is Yehudi.

Anyway, the only thing that matters right now is what he found out, and I will tell the story to you just as he told it to me.

The ink bottle on the writing desk was feeling pretty blue-black one day because someone had left his lid off. Now being an ink bottle and pretty mischevious, he began to look around for something to do. Spying my white angora cat on the floor beside the desk, it occurred to him that a nice big blue spot on its back would be becoming. While the inspiration was still fresh and tingling in his mind, he inched over to the side of the desk and tipped, ever so slightly, upon one side. Well, when I came in, my cat was the most beautiful polka dotted animal you will ever care to see. I couldn't feature how it happened, but I could nearly see my little brother sticking out all over the room.

I put the lid on the ink bottle, however, and began to straighten the room.

Had I known then what the ink bottle was thinking, I would have thrown a book at it.

As I was working about the room, the ink bottle watched my every move, and began to think things to itself.

"Clumsy, land, she moves like a tractor, only not as much grace, and I would say she weighs about two pounds less than an elephant. Ha, ha, that one was rich; I'll have to write that down and send it to my cousin, ditto ink.

"Just wait till she jumps her little bud about the ink on the cat, I'll teach them to leave my cap off!

"I wonder if I should dribble the next time the old man fills his pen, I may as well make him mad.

"Let's see, the old lady is writing a letter to her sister isn't she? Guess I'll just dribble again."

Oh, I found out a lot from Yehudi, but I won't tell it because it may seem fantastic; so I'll end my story.

Do you know what your ink bottle thinks? No? Then hire a spy and find out.

PATSY HAUGHT.

Arizona

Arizona is the youngest child of the United States. She was born last and has developed into a beautiful girl, with copper-colored hair, a desert color complexion, and cactus green eyes. Her lips resemble the setting sun at twilight that turns the horizon into a beautiful shade of reddish-orange. Her favorite fruits are grapefruit, oranges, lemons, and limes.

Arizona exposes herself to the sun a great deal and enjoys a little rain every now and then. She is happiest when dressed up in her cowboy outfit and is out roaming the wide open spaces.

ANGELINA VALDEZ.

Rare Animal

Isn't that a funny looking critter? Wonder whose it is? Your dog? Oh, I'm sorry, I didn't know; I didn't mean to be so rude. Please forgive me; I really didn't mean any harm; besides, if you want a good laugh, you should see my flea breeder. If you'll listen a few minutes, I'll tell you a little about him.

His name is Pork. Why call a dog Pork? I'll explain. When he was a young pooch of six weeks, he was very small. As a result of fast eating and of devouring large quantities of food, he took on the shape of a pig. His legs were short; and after a meal, his stomach would almost drag the ground. So looking like this, he acquired the name of Pork. Hsi present shape is somewhat different though. He is about a yard long and his under-carriage has ground clearance of five inches. His color, being all black except for a few white hairs on his chest which look like a white vest, makes him very difficult, in fact almost impossible, to see in the dark.

Now he doesn't sound like much, but don't believe what you hear because he is really a rare animal. Of course, my parents or I have never been able to find out just exactly what he's good for, but we have hopes. And smart? There's not a dog in the country than can compete with that soup-hound of mine. Of course he gets his intelligence from his master. (That's me). This animal I'm telling you about can practically talk. Whenever he wants to go outside, he just walks up to me or to anybody else that is around and explains the necessity of being excused. Oh! You don't believe me when I say that my dog can talk? Well, he doesn't talk as you or I do; but he has his own way of talking; and if you can't understand his language, it proves that he is smarter than you. The same thing occurs when he wants to go to bed. About 9:30 p.m. he gets up from in front of the fire-place, stretches, and says that he is ready for bed. If someone doesn't act promptly, trouble begins. And be sure, he must be covered up or nobody will get any rest during the night. We (the dog and I) used to sleep on the back porch where we got along companionably for a long time, but he started snoring, then talking in his sleep. Finally, when he started whistling, I moved out. I just couldn't endure it any longer!

Now some people must have their steak cooked just right and their gravy just the right color, but none of these people can be compared with this pooch of mine. He won't eat cold biscuits and gravy and raw or cooked meat as the rest of his clan; no, sir, he has to see his food come out of a can or he won't even smell what I put on his plate. Now that the dog food manufactures can't put the food in cans, I don't know what I'm going to do with my dog.

I'm a little worried about him now, with this war going on and all. He might be drafted and sent to Washington, D. C., as a personal advisor.

EARL SPOON.

Meditations of a Blackboard

Boy, these nights surely can get chilly! I wish "Blondie" Price would hurry up and light the furnace. Ah, here comes another dawn. It's much better with a little heat in here now. It seems queer that I see and know all the things and people I do; yet very few people know me. Oh, yes, they claim they do. Just cold, black slate or cardboard, they say. Well, this may constitute part of my make-up; but, in reality, I am more than that. Just to show you what I mean, we'll run through a day at school.

Here I am in English class, right up on the front wall. From about 7:30 a.m. until after the last bell rings, there is the continual noise of banging lockers, tramping feet, Whistling, talking, shouting, singing, and numerous other nerve-twisters. Well, the period starts and what do I see? All through the class I can detect evidences of a late last night. There's Bonnie in the front row with no assignment. Over to her left is Jackie, asleep. Then I notice the teacher. My but she is cross this morning! Maybe she just isn't wide awake yet. So on through the day I see little dramas unfold themselves before my black, bland countenance. There's the pair of sweethearts that hold hands when nobody is looking. Too, the copy-writer, in action. When I have a test scribbled across my face, the class is a petrified sight. Despite the nail chewing, hairtearing, and raucous whispering, the students manage to slip through the test.

Well, it is getting close to five o'clock, and almost everyone has left the building. Here comes another long evening for me to meditate in silence on the doings and misdoings of education.

BOB CANFIELD.

"A Cabin In the Woods"

One day when I sat silently musing,
As my thoughts become more confusing
My wandering glance did chance to fall
Upon a lovely picture on the wall.
A rustic cabin in a silent wood,
There to live a life that's rich and good.
The whole wide world for a yard,
All nature's wide expanse to guard.
A creek by my cabin its way does wind,
And I count each animal as a friend.
Here away from worldly strife,
I'd live a full and happy life.
I wish I were a poet great.
Oh, if it only were my fate
To write this poem in such a way
My deepest feelings to convey.

GRACE SMYERS.

How About You

Does a grasshopper hop,
  Because he's full of hops?
I don't know,
Do you?
Do cats-nip
  Or do they nap?
Who would want to know,
Would you?
Are cannibals
  The brother of canon-balls?
I've been wondering,
How about you?
Do ships sink,
  Because they need a drink?
Who knows,
Do you?
They talk of balloon tires,
  I didn't know balloons had tires,
How about you?
There's lots I dont know.

JIMMIE DUNCAN.

"Life's Tapestry"

Life is a tapestry woven through the years
Gray for a background of grief and of tears,
Golden threads drawn here and there
Represent hours that are bright and fair.
A scarlet thread here, remember that day?
You did something special; were so joyous and gay.
A black strand next; grief for a friend,
Wearisome hours that had no end.
The tapestry is all a marvelous plan
To lead us at least to a green promised land;
So draw the threads gayly and secure,
The sombre as well as the bright,
The finished pattern leads the way to eternal light.

ESTHERBEL DENNY.

"Mountain at Midnight"

I looked at the mountain top,
  With its snowy cap of white
And wondered what happened up there
  In the middle of the night.
I wondered if the snow still glistened,
  And sparkled beneath the mighty pines,
Oh! I've wondered about that mountain
  At night, so many, many times.

FRANCES BERTOGLIO.

MacArthur's Men

Yesterday, you were our boys,
At work, at school, at play;
Then, your country called you,
You are "MacArthur's Men" today.
Here at home, we bow our heads
Each day to say a prayer,
That God will give you strength
To keep the Japs away.
When the war is over, and
You come home again;
Pages in history await you;
You who are "MacArthur's Men."

FAY TUTTLE.

"Saturday Morning Housecleaning"

Every Saturday morning,
When I like to sleep late.
Mother always gets me up
To something I just hate.
It's Saturday morning housecleaning,
And what a job it is;
For at our house there isn't
A corner that we miss.
We sweep and dust, scrub and clean
Until it all shines bright.
And you should see me when we're through,
Why I am just a sight.
Then Mother goes all through the house
To see what isn't done,
And very sweetly says to me,
"Why this isn't clean, hon."
So back I go to do again
The job I left undone.
I find that doing the job over
Just isn't any fun.
So every Saturday morning,
When in a wondrous sleep I lay
I hear Mother's voice calling
"Hurry, darling, don't delay."
Oh, how I would love to crawl back
Under the covers and stay.
But out I slowly venture
To greet the bright new day.

Through the guidance of Miss Marian Carter and Mr. Hale Brimhall, they have had a successful year.

ORCHESTRA

The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Bauman, has had an active year. The orchestra always furnishes entertainment between the acts of the class play. The main performances of the orchestra this year were at the Christmas program, and at the local music contest.

As there were no long trips or district contests, there was not the usual competition; but the orchestra members have faithfully practiced throughout the year.

GLOBE HIGH SCHOOL CHORUS

This year the Globe High School Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Victor Bauman, has participated in many school activities. The Chorus, consisting of eighty voices, has worked many long hours and should be commended for its fine work.

The Chorus, which was featured in the Christmas program, was greatly lauded for its splendid performance; it also provided a great deal of the fine old "darkie" music for the Minstrel Pep Show. This spring it formed a major part of the Musical Festival held in the district and has appeared in several concerts.

SENIOR BAND

B A N D

This year the band has been under the excellent leadership of Mr. Victor H. Bauman who came to our school from Cumberland, Maryland.

Band students are given a choice of either taking band for a full credit or for half credit. Those who take it for a full credit study a detailed course having definite requirements.

Among some of the outstanding events the band has participated in and sponsored are: the football game at Mesa — this opened the season with a bang! Another outstanding football display was the Pageant Review in which a number of students took part; and the Armistice Day program at which the band played host to a group of R.A.F. Cadets training at a field near Phoenix. Also the band has sponsored some very good concerts among which the Dixie Blackstone Concert was outstanding. The Easter Sunrise Service was as inspiring as the annual spring concert was successful. The Tri-city Music Festival between Globe, Miami, and Superior was a new venture this year to replace the Eastern Music Division Meet.

Hi-Y has added to its record new laurels for the school year of 1941-1942. The members of the Hi-Y, wearing their bright red sweaters, are found at all games, acting as ushers. Their contributions to the school also include their annual scholarship awards and a new basketball score board.

The Hi-Y's record is due not only to the boys included in the organization but to the excellent sponsorship of "Doc" Miller, Frank Grice, and Hale Brimhall.

Vice-President	Dormalea Shelton
Secretary	Abelia Covich
Treasurer	Betsy Hayes
Sponsor	Mozelle Hicks

The Art Club is an organization of thirty-five people who are very interested in art and its many phases.

This year the club has been very busy. They have used charcoal, pencils, colored chalk, water colors, and crayons. They have made many posters and have carved with wood and soap.

The members are initiated twice a year for each semester. At this time, a party is given honoring those being initiated.

They find their work very interesting and they are a very active group.

GIRLS LEAGUE

The Girls' League is the local unit of a national organization which automatically includes all girls who enter a public senior high school. The purpose of this democratic organization is that of giving every girl a right to voice her opinion in school affairs.

Each year the Globe Girls League sponsors a Christmas Charity Dance, a Co-ed Week and Dance, a Mother-Daughter Party, and all-girl assemblies. It also participates in state and divisional conventions. This year on November 7, the League entertained the State Convention jointly with Miami.

The Lettermen's Club, commonly called the Tiger Club, is a social and beneficial organization. The highlight of the year was the Smoker, an annual affair sponsored for the promotion of good-fellowship between the boys in school and their fellow townsmen. This year's Smoker was a complete success!

The Tiger Club has assumed a defnite obligation—that of raising funds to help those boys who are injured while participating in athletic contests.

The club also held its annual initiation and picnic during which ten new initiates were seen doing unusual antics and assuming peculiar poses designed for the entertainment of the Student Body.
